SOCIETY

"Now October cool invites us.
All the world is out to play."
From behind young Swiper smiles us,
And old Dormie blocks the way."

Wheeling society, as far as possible, will be on the Washington (Pa.) golf links to-day, championing the Wheeling team doing battle against the six at home there. The week of which this red letter day will be the close, was an especially brilliant one, seeing the reorganization of last season's social clubs, a Casino dance, the opening of the Woman's Musical Club, the bestowal of a ware-room by Mr. George A. Laughlin to the King's Daughters of the city in which to hold the now anticipated Rummage Sale, the Grubb Waterhouse, the Delaplaine, the Campbell and the Franzheim-Birch entertainments, and the Peterson, the Holloway, and the Stearns dinners, in honor of Mrs. N. S. Thomas, of Philadelphia. The coming week has scheduled the whist entertainers on Monday, the Spinsters' meeting Monday, the Woman's Club Friday, and the return match golf game Saturday, on the Wheeling links at Woodsdale.

The Married Ladies' Euchre club was handsomely entertained for the first time this season at the Jacob W. Grubb residence at Echo Point, yesterday. This prominent organization has been one of the features of society life in this city for many years, the old members holding over with permissible additions to the ranks, from among the brides of the season, house guests of members and a few friends of the hostesses entertaining. The meetings are held semi-monthly on Friday and progressive euchre is the game, and prizes are awarded.

Mrs. Harry C. Franzheim and Mrs. John C. Birch beautifully entertained the Island Ladies' Euchre Club yesterday afternoon at the H. C. Franzheim home, on South Front street. The full membership, including this year's selections and several special guests from this side of the river, were present and delightfully enjoyed the meeting. Progressive euchre is the call of this organization and the afternoon's trophies were won by Mrs. Frank Stamm and Mrs. Evans, visitors, and Mrs. James Neill, Mrs. Al. Bowie, Mrs. Willie Irwin and Mrs. Walter H. Rinehart, members of the club. The next entertainment will be tendered by Mrs. James B. McKee and Mrs. Al. Bowie, at the McKee home, on North Main street.

The Woman's Club opened its season to participation in the Choral Club yesterday afternoon in the A. O. U. W. temple, where the organization will meet every Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Thirty members, embracing the best talent of the city, were enrolled. The instrumentalists will present their invitations for membership next Friday. The associate and honorary members will be invited at the time of the first recital, which will be the third week of October, and a brilliant season is anticipated, and the auspicious beginning yesterday augurs its fulfillment.

to his individual effort and his work in behalf of the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra concerns here, was effective. Every local or out-of-town musical organization appearing publicly, had the encouragement of his personal presence. Thorough musician, Mr. Rhee was always missed as he stepped from active participation in any organization he had joined, the Oratorio Society, the choir of St. Matthew's P. E. church, and of the First Presbyterian church, and Musical Wheeling sheds a tear with the brother Morgan L. Rhee, at the grave of him whose life held so much of the ideal.

The King's Daughters of the city are indebted to Mr. George A. Laughlin, for his kind donation of a ware-room. In which to hold the Rummage Sale to be undertaken for the benefit of the Day Nursery. This kindness is appreciated and the room, 1235 Main street, up to this time used by the Frew Furniture Company, will be opened Tuesday afternoon, to receive any goods already reserved by householders or store-keepers for this sale. Thanks are extended through this method this morning by the King's Daughters to George E. Stifel & Co., and L. R. Sonborn for gifts received. The ladies, with Mrs. Will F. Higgins, of South Penn street, in charge will be at the ware-room from Tuesday on, to receive, from soliciting committees and individuals, so that at the time of sale every article will have been properly placed and valued. The sale will be held October 31 and November 1, and is expected to be a great boon to many classes in helping to tide over the coming winter, as well as close the debt on the Day Nursery building.

In the death of Mr. Claire O'Neill, Musical Wheeling loses a conspicuous encouragement to every local effort for the improvement and advancement of its interest. Popular as a singer in entertainments for the benefit of charity as a member of the St. Matthew's P. E. church choir, and as one of the projectors of the Oratorio Society, Mr. O'Neill's influence was marked and his early death is the cause of sincere deplored.

Mr. J. Nelson Vance, Jr., and sister, Miss Lillian E. Vance, who have been travelling on the continent the past six months, are expected home next week, having started from Liverpool on the 26th. They will be accompanied by Mr. Samuel W. Harper, of Pleasant Valley, who sailed to meet them especially to make the homeward journey.

Mrs. Alexander R. Campbell entertained the Wednesday afternoon duplicate whist set at her home, on North Eoff street. This club embraces the following recognized whistlers from the women ranks: Mrs. W. W. Arnett, Mrs. Charles H. Toney, Mrs. Jacob W. Grubb and Mrs. Campbell. At this session in the absence of Mrs. Toney, Mrs. Julius Pollock was present and Mrs. Pollock and Mrs. Campbell won.

In connection with the coming Rummage Sale for the benefit of the Day Nursery and the formation of many Woman's clubs for one reason or another, and the talk the recent publication of a book from the pen of a talented Wheeling woman has created, the following written by her, (Mrs. Cora Updegraff Nock), to the "Easter Herald," bearing on the subject of the club woman, is opportune, and therefore reproduced:

Is the club woman less domestic than the one hidden in the isolation of the home? The old sophism has not wholly lost its persuasiveness, in spite of the logical progress of public opinion; yet, a glance through the periodical literature of the day, must convince the skeptic, of the practical turn of mind displayed by most women of the up-to-date club. It is true that occasional hours take her from the seclusion of the home, but the avidity with which she has formed the habit of impromptu debate, has given her that quick and independent attitude of mind which enables her to conduct her home, be it humble or princely, with that systematic calculation, which the contact with bright ideas has reduced to a minimum.

It is at the club that the mother learns from the intellectual woman how to develop the physical and mental condition of her children. There she learns the difference between good literature; so that she is able to lead the youthful mind through the complex queries of an advanced age, by making the distinction clear to her children. It is there she learns to be the intelligent adviser of her husband in his commercial interests, to assist him, perhaps, in his journalistic or his literary labors—to even advise him, it might seem, in complex legal queries, and when she goes back to her home, her husband is benefited by some intelligent suggestions that fit into his particular branch of business. Her children are benefited, and society at large is affected by the temporary absence from the family circle.

Yes, the club woman, so-called, has always an objective point. It may be educational or philanthropic or commercial, but it is seldom that pleasure is made the object. And as it has been clearly demonstrated that woman is a success in almost anything she undertakes, we are not surprised at the striking illustrations that loom up before us in the Day Nurseries, the homes for friendless children, and the thousands of institutions throughout the country erected by noble heart of woman. Not the narrow scoffer, who, secure in her own home comforts, heeds not the piteous cry, but the woman who, whilst caring for those of her own household, still has heart enough and energy enough, to reach out her hand to her less fortunate sister, worn out in the struggle for existence, and bid her go in peace to her daily battle, with the confidence of knowing that her little ones are not turned adrift to await her home-coming, but safe in the keeping of tender women. In an atmosphere which the innocent heart of childhood has not become imbued with its noble spirit.

Miss Augusta Hearne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hearne, of the Island; Miss Anne Cummins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Cummins, of the Island, and William Holloway, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Holloway, of Leatherwood, are members of the younger society set who left for college during the week now ending.

Mrs. M. Hulda Delaplaine charmingly entertained at whist at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary A. Delaplaine, on North Chapline street, Wednesday morning. Those making up the game were Mrs. Harry Filmore Stallman, Mrs. Maude Eccles Heiskell, Miss Louise Rinehart and the hostess.

The Mercantile Charity Whist Club was reorganized last Wednesday evening, and the object of its benevolence

George W. Delbrugge, dancing master of Wheeling, and little Miss Virginia Burr, one of his younger pupils, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Burr, of the Island, in the Gavotte, from "Aurora," the operetta produced last winter by Wheeling talent, under Delbrugge's direction. The artistic production was beautifully accompanied with songs by Miss Elsie Gundling.

specified. Playing for this benefit will be Wednesday of every week and will be one of the season's features of the club house on Main street.

There is nothing special scheduled for either golf club to-day because of the game at Washington, Pa., in which both clubs are interested. Recent additions to the Highland club are Messrs. Peebles Tatum, Dwight Wagner, Harry Filmore Stallman and Charles Cooke.

The Wheeling Golf Club will be strongly represented at Washington, Pa., in the Inter-city match to-day, by John H. Storer, Mr. Charles F. Paxton, Mr. Charles List Lamb, and Henry K. List Dazell. The Highland club has its strongest force as well, presented by Mr. T. Harvey Pollock and Mr. Clinton R. Campbell, and another player.

The press reference to Prof. Hermann M. Schockey and his probable nomination for mayor of this city, are especially gratifying to Musical Wheeling. Mr. Schockey's nomination and election to this position of honor, would certainly be unanimous, if controlled by the music-loving people.

The Monday Charity Whist Club, of last season, whose beneficees were many, has not yet been re-organized, but it is wished for by the members who in that way were able to lend a helping hand, otherwise, unable because of lack of knowledge where to work, as well as by the last season's beneficees.

The North Main Street Euchre Club held a business meeting on Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. William A. Test. All last year's members were re-elected and the following new names were added to the roster: Mrs. Edwin M. Holliday, Mrs. S. L. Brice, Mrs. Alexander Glass, Mrs. J. B. Gardner, Mrs. Whitmer, Miss Jennie Canfield, Miss Whitmer and Mrs. James N. Hill.

The dance given by Prof. George M. Delbrugge to the Married People's, the Cottillon and Junior Cottillon was brilliantly attended last evening. This probably closes the Park dancing season. The Carroll club house was opened Thursday evening, for the dancing season.

"CAMP STIFEL" IN FAR AWAY HONDURAS.

Sam Hugh Brockunier Writes Entertainingly of Experiences in Central America.

THE OLD SPANISH GOLD MINES

Explored by the Young Americans. Only Two Scraps and But One Strike Experienced.

Messrs. Sam Hugh Brockunier and Edward W. Stifel, of this city, whose big gold strike in western Ontario two years ago aroused so much interest here and resulted in the formation of a mining company, have recently been exploring in the wilds of Honduras, in Central America, looking toward gold mining operations. The Intelligencer has been favored with a letter from Mr. Brockunier, which is dated August 13, at Camp Stifel, on the Chiquila river, but comes via Tegucigalpa, September 3, and in an explanatory note, Mr. Brockunier says: "The enclosed has been delayed by inaccessibility of post-offices during my trip to Tegucigalpa. Expect to follow it shortly with some descriptions of our journey, which was varied and more or less interesting."

Correspondence of the Intelligencer. CAMP STIFEL, Chiquila River, Honduras, Aug. 13 via Tegucigalpa, Sept. 3.—Since I wrote you last we have been very busy exploring, prospecting and surveying, from this point as a centre. Our pueblo shows a healthy growth; starting from nothing but a howling wilderness—literally, for the country is full of tigers—we have now some ten houses, or as we would call them huts, and a large company store, the latter called by the natives casa grande.

The rainy season varies in different parts of the country, being apparently governed by altitude and natural features of the land; it began here in dead earnest on the first of July and one could scarcely go out without getting caught in a storm, but it cleared up about the first and they tell us we have six weeks' interval of fair weather before the heavy rains of November and December.

We have examined five places and some thirty old Spanish gold mines. The latter are known as the Sula mines and form a very interesting study. They are up among the pines on top of a high mountain and were worked by the Spanish from 1625 to 1823. During this period several million tons of ore were extracted and ground in the old fashioned arrastra. The poor Indians who performed the labor were not thought of as men, they were merely considered as so much work; they were worse than slaves, because they were not only required to toil but to provide their own living, and it may well be said that there were as many lives as tons of ore ground out.

Many of the old tunnels and shafts had fallen in and others were very shaky, but we were able to enter enough to accomplish our work. Our first entrance aroused thousands of bats from a long slumber, their squealing and the flapping of their wings disturbed our nerves quite a little at first, and we were constantly dodging until we learned that they were equally anxious to avoid us; but it was always startling to see them fly straight at you and then sheer off within a few inches of your face. As a counter-irritant we had to keep on the alert for soft roofs and hidden pits, so we were quite happy for awhile. Mr. Holmes, in probing around, let down a portion of the roof in one tunnel, but as it fell between us no harm was done.

The old timbering was almost entirely gone and where still standing crumbled at a touch. The rock is quite soft and the way the Indians twisted and turned in it with their drifts was quite curious and bewildering; they reminded one more of large gopher holes than of mines.

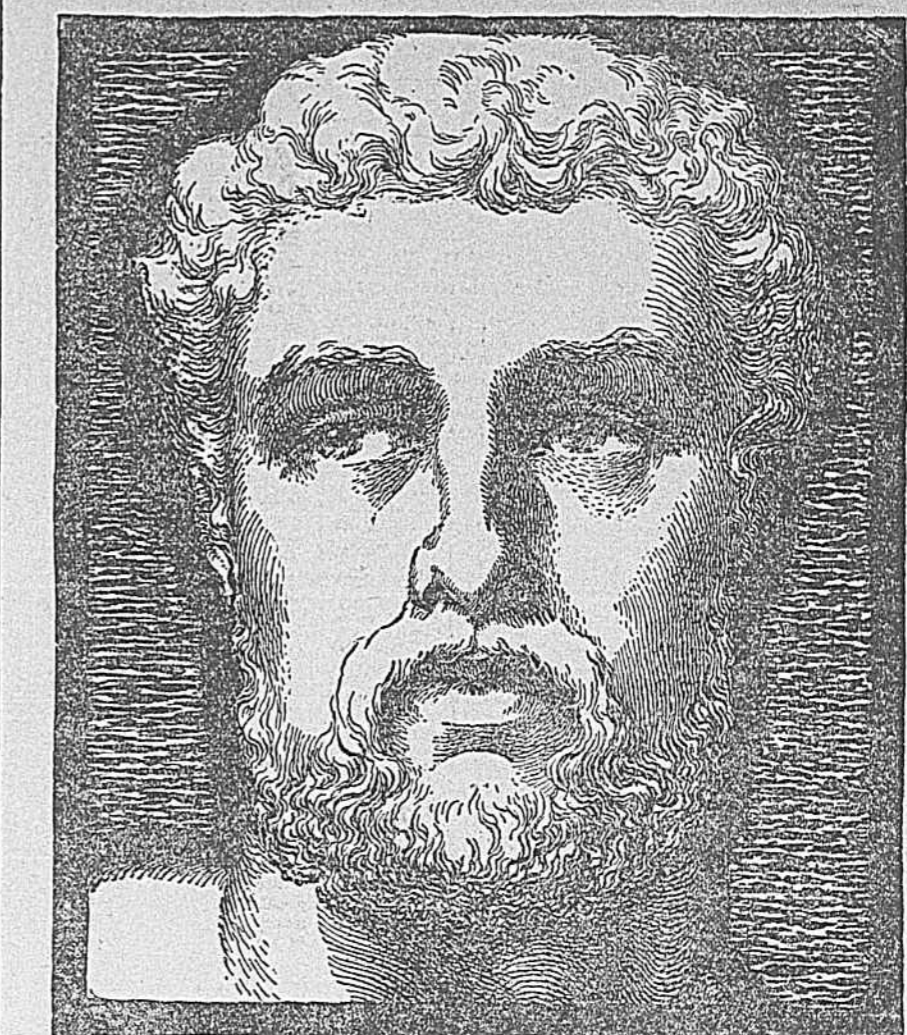

The old forsaken pueblo presented a sad, but quaint sight. Part of the adobe walls were still standing, but vegetation was growing around and through them. The broken pottery, the old stone mortars for grinding corn, or what not, and remnants of ovens, all looked as if they had suddenly been deserted; just as if the place had been swept by the plague. One unconscious-looking road for human bones. It was odd to see a fine fourteen inch plug growing right in the middle of the house.

Standing there alone on a moonlight night, watching for tigers, the stones seemed to whisper stories of cruelty and crime, of a busy but wretched place; and in imagination I could see the long files of slaves filing off to their work, each fifty in charge of some hard hearted Spaniard. Again in the evening, I could see them crawling back to their mess of pottage and hard food, some poor devil more tired than the rest, brutally kicked by the insolent foreman for lingering behind the rest.

The white pines in this section would delight the eye of our wood workers; tall, handsome, solid and large of girth, they stand, awaiting the axe of man, to be transformed from the monarchs of these forests to the joy of our sweet little housewife in her cozy dwelling. A number of the trees are four feet in diameter, and a few even larger. They are grand specimens and would make a logger's eyes glisten. Not far away are mahogany and rubber forests, which we found during our exploration.

We celebrated the "glorious fourth" by all shooting off our revolvers and hoisting the American flag bright and early in the morning; every one then settled down to a hard day's work, and I was in the midst of an arduous calculation when a delegation of the village girls called and asked if I would stop the work and give a dance in honor of the "American Feast Day." I declined with thanks, perhaps regretfully, but we are not here for dancing. At another time when flat on my back with fever, they sent word they would

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

A Powerful Remedy for Disease

"It cured me of old chronic diseases and nervous prostration."

Mr. J. B. Potter, Centerville, R. I., writes Sept. 15:

"Fifteen years ago I had to give up business on account of poor health. I was suffering from a number of old chronic diseases and had complete nervous prostration. In 1891 I commenced taking Paine's Celery Compound and soon found that I was getting the better of my complaints. I continued using it until I was restored to health. Believing that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, I take the Compound in the spring and fall, and it keeps me well. Paine's Celery Compound has made almost a new man of me, and I have gained twenty-eight pounds of good, solid flesh, thanks to its use."

come and talk to me if I desired, this I also had to decline.

We have only had two "scraps" among the men and one strike; Mr. Rayburn and myself stopped these in short order. This, I consider quite a good record for a place where from 50 to 100 of these hot tempered people are thrown closely together. One of their marked characteristics is that they have no care or feeling for each other. If one sees a boulder rolling down on another he will not take the trouble to stop it or even warn the man in danger. I have had to dress many up wounds, which might easily have been avoided. When at camp I often have three or four cases a day and have had so much success that my services are greatly sought, often to the detriment of my regular work.

Our darkey cook said one day that one man could not successfully be general manager, doctor, book-keeper, blacksmith and assayer; instance this merely to illustrate some of the things we are called upon to do; on occasion we add carpentering, masonry and architecture and the boys are now talking of going into gardening.

This is a free silver country and twice a month we have to send pack mules after enough silver to pay off the men, gold is out of sight and paper so much discounted that it is of no value. The silver dollar is worth forty-five cents and rated at that value.
